

It is the policy and intention of UHV Sputtering, Inc to provide our customers with a level of service that is unparalleled. To that end, UHV Sputtering processes customer orders in an environment which is strictly controlled. These controls include methods used to restrict access by all interested parties, both internal and external.

UHV is an ITAR-registered facility; this requires us to monitor and, as necessary, restrict or prevent access to all areas in which materials are stored and/or processed. Thus, we exercise due diligence with regard to those who are involved with internal processes. UHV Sputtering's practices benefit our customers by providing confidentiality and integrity with regard to materials and customer orders.

In order to sustain that level of integrity, as well as requisite traceability, UHV will work with our customers in order to maintain a "chain of custody" process in which, upon request, UHV will exercise reasonable diligence in order to provide records of personnel involved with processing of material, for purposes of accountability and material integrity.

Please contact your UHV Sputtering Sales representative or QA Manager with questions regarding this matter.
